

2024 IMPACT REPORT

As it has since its founding in 1985, CFACT continues to grow in stature and influence each passing year. 2024 was no exception. This report provides just a brief summary of some of those successes, ranging from our Collegians program and anti-ESG/shareholder efforts to our Grassroots Outreach, UN Watchdog, Climate Depot, and Stewardship in Action programs (among others), you'll see we've come a long way! So, if you have a moment, take a look! I'm certain you'll be impressed.

2024 TOP ACHIEVEMENTS

- CFACT continued to make a major media splash throughout 2024, with spokesmen appearing either on radio, television, or print news outlets on a nearly daily basis. CFACT's Marc Morano was a regular weekly guest on one or several major news outlets such as Fox News, NewsMax or OANN, and policy analysts Bonner Cohen, Paul Driessen, Gabriella Hoffman, Duggan Flanagan, and Peter Murphy frequently appeared in publications such as The Washington Times, NewsMax, Federalist, Human Events, Real Clear Energy, Inside Sources, and numerous others.
- CFACT's policy team have released two important studies in 2024. The first, "Maine's Massive Floating Wind Folly," by David Wojick, Ph.D., detailed the folly of the plans to place floating wind turbines off the coast of Maine, along with the cost of the Inflation Reduction Act. Secondly, Dave Judy released a report entitled, "The PROVE IT Act's Carbon Tariffs' Threats to U.S. Agriculture." This report summarized the cost and threat of the PROVE IT Act, which was working its way through Congress and would place a carbon tax on imported goods and commodities. The cost of fertilizer would skyrocket, crippling our agricultural sector here in the U.S.

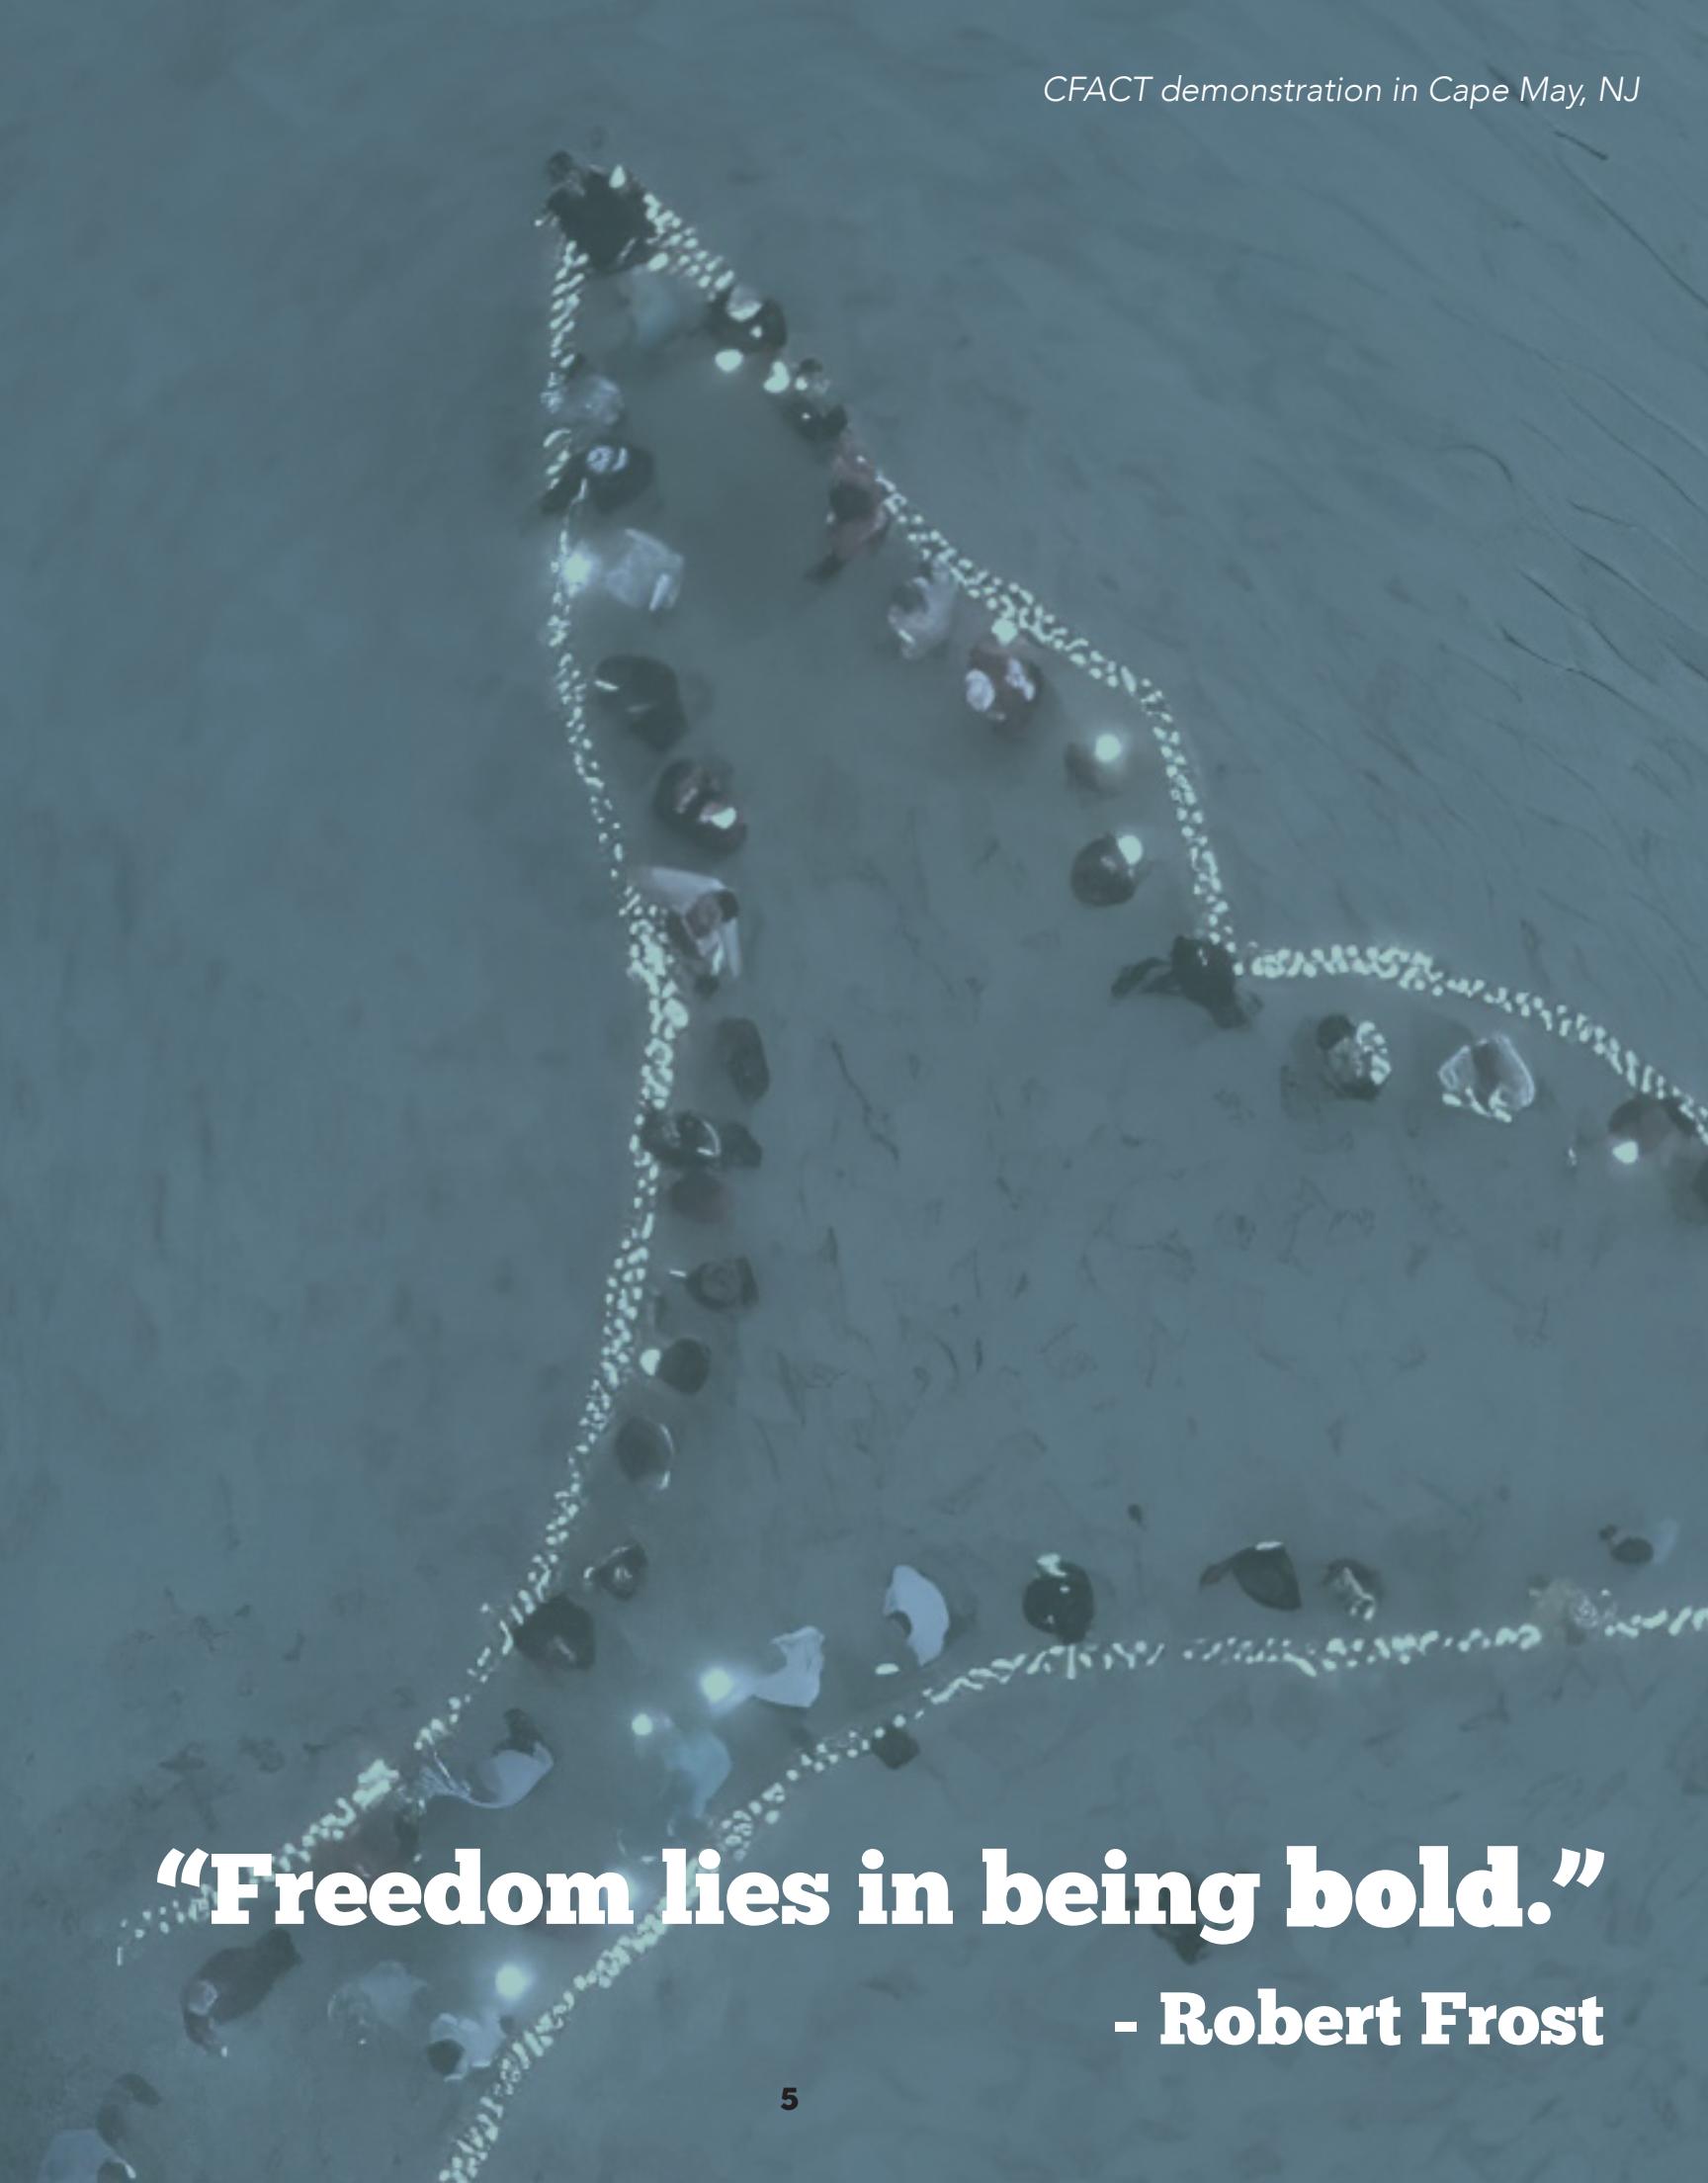

- Numerous states introduced legislation based on model bills crafted by CFACT President Craig Rucker and senior policy expert Frank Lasee (via their participation in the American Legislative Exchange Council). These included ones to ensure America's grid reliability is not hampered by the reckless introduction of renewables as well as prevent the use of child and slave labor in the fabrication of electric vehicle components. States that introduced the CFACT-Lasee inspired bills included AZ, MI, NH, MO, IA, IN, KY, MT, and VA, among others.

- Several CFACT staff members were able to attend shareholder meetings of prominent companies and confronted their chairmen with direct and challenging comments about their misguided ESG and DEI policies. These included the CEO's of Bank of America, Exxon, JPMorgan Chase, State Street, Vanguard, and BlackRock, among others. Soon after CFACT and its allies made their statements, several of these companies withdrew from the UN's Net Zero Asset Managers Initiative.
- CFACT's Stewardship in Action Initiative gained momentum in 2024. In India, another water well was recently dug to bring fresh water to villagers in Kharpudi Village. In Tanzania, CFACT continued its longtime project to protect lions by providing critical resources to 20 bomas (traditional cattle enclosures) in the village of Sinya, Tanzania. And in Uganda, CFACT helped sponsor successful piggery and rabbit-breeding projects to help feed hungry people in Wakiso Entebbe in Katabi sub-county.
- CFACT was a prominent sponsor of the 16th International Conference on Climate Change that took place from June 13-15 in Vienna, Austria. Those in attendance at the packed house included intellectual heavyweights such as Nobel Prize winner John Clauser, Harvard-Smithsonian scientist Dr. Willie Soon, Trump science advisor Dr. William Happer, and Danish climatologist Dr. Henrik Svensmark, among many others. CFACT's Craig Rucker and Marc Morano also delivered presentations.

- CFACT's lawsuit against Dominion Energy and the Biden Administration received a largely successful verdict from U.S. Federal District judge Loren Alikhan (a Biden appointee) in late May. While the judge did deny CFACT and its allies their request for a preliminary injunction to stop the construction of a mega-windfarm project off Virginia Beach, she did green light the lawsuit to proceed by granting the plaintiffs standing in the case. One of CFACT's attorney's, Paul Kamenar, summed up Alikhan's ruling by stating, "We're pleased the judge found we have standing, which is contrary to Dominion's concerted efforts to throw us out of court to prevent it from even ruling on our case."
- The organization's Collegians program also had a remarkable year, with students at the University of Houston and Georgetown University delivering public comments to local officials against EV mandates and offshore wind. In addition, other campuses CFACT campus activists collectively carried out roughly 100 events that included policy workshops, tabling, litter cleanups, speaking events, and nature outings.
- The Committee sent representatives to the UN climate change meeting (COP29) in Azerbaijan in November shortly after the U.S. election. CFACT representatives reported extensively on events to over 50 media outlets during their time spent there, and also released provocative social media posts that highlighted such things, for example, as UN delegates forgoing a low-carbon meal and hypocritically eating red meat during their conference meeting.

“Freedom lies in being bold.”

CLIMATE DEPOT

Climate Depot continued its runaway success in 2024 and achieved perhaps unprecedented media success. CFACT's Climate Depot News and Information Service, which was launched in 2009, has become one of the most trafficked and cited websites on climate-realist news in the world. Its director, Marc Morano, is now a leading source of information on virtually all subjects related to environment, energy, and climate change from a center-right perspective.

A regular on Fox News, Newsmax TV, and high-profile shows like TBN's Mike Huckabee, Laura Ingraham, Sean Hannity, Fox & Friends, and Lou Dobbs Tonight, Joe Piscopo's radio show and Dan Bongino's nationally syndicated radio program and other broadcasts, Morano is a "go-to" expert sought out by the media. Other TV outlets Morano frequented included The First TV, Real America's Voice TV, OAN TV, Australia's Sky News TV, and Canada's Rebel TV.

Morano's live reports from the UN climate summit in Azerbaijan went global in 2024 as he appeared on a Turkish TV climate debate and multiple live on-location reports for Fox News Channel, podcasts, and many other TV and radio networks. His website is visited by hundreds of thousands of unique visitors each month. CFACT's Climate Depot Twitter account is also followed by many influential people in government, industry, academia, and the media.

Below is a summary of some of the significant Climate Depot achievements from 2024.

- As CFACT's Director of Communications, Morano was a guest on the Fox News Channel more than three dozen times — including regular segments on Fox & Friends, Jesse Watters' Primetime, Hannity, The Ingraham Angle, Fox Business's Stuart Varney Show, Evening Edit, and The Bottom Line.
- Morano was also featured on EPOCH Times TV and was invited as a guest seven times on Canada's The Rebel TV, 18 times on One America News, and 8 times on Newsmax TV — plus several featured interviews by Allen Jackson and Mike Huckabee on the TBN TV network.
- National and regional radio programs frequently invited Morano to be a talk show guest — totaling more than 70 programs — that included such broadcasts as Sean Hannity's nationally syndicated radio program, American Family Radio (12 times), The Joe Piscopo Show (15 times), Vicki McKenna (18 times), and WMAL radio in DC (9 times).
- Climate Depot produced dozens of exclusive special news reports that were picked up by major media, including groundbreaking 2024 reports on the failure of the energy "transition" in both the U.S. and the world, reporting that the U.S. — despite decades of mandates and subsidies still produces over 80% fossil fuels, with solar & wind making up just 2.2% of all energy and globally solar & wind only produce 13.9% of the world's electricity. Morano went on Fox News, prominent podcasts, national radio, and many other outlets detailing these reports.

- In February 2024, Climate Depot's exclusive report on how the climate agenda was coming for your clothes with the goal of limiting new clothing to three items per person by 2030 and how corporate media led by the Washington Post was touting "recycling human hair...into clothes" as a "climate solution." Morano appeared on Hannity's Fox News primetime show to present and analyze the agenda.
- In April 2024, Morano's Special Report on how President Biden could bypass democracy by declaring a national "Climate Emergency" made a huge impact. Morano appeared on EPOCH TV, Fox Business with several clips going viral online.
- In June 2024, Depot's report on BlackRock's Larry Fink at the World Economic Foundation meeting conceded solar and wind power were not adequate to run modern society because they were "intermittent power" rocked the energy debate.
- In July 2024, Climate Depot's exclusive report on U.S. heatwave trends revealed that even the Biden/Harris EPA data reveals heatwaves in the 1930s were significantly hotter than they are today. Morano presented the facts during a live TV debate on Fox Business.
- In Fall 2024, Morano had several op-eds nationally syndicated, appearing on such outlets as AOL.com, The Washington Times, and Daily Caller on topics ranging from Trump's energy plans, COP29, the UN climate summit and how VP Harris was hiding her climate agenda from voters.
- In November 2024, Morano was profiled in the German Newspaper Junge Freiheit, as "one of the world's most outspoken critics of climate policy."
- In November 2024, Morano debated a Just Stop Oil spokesman in a live Turkish TV debate from the floor of COP29's UN climate Summit in Baku, Azerbaijan. Just Stop Oil declared, "People like Marc have actually not allowed the real progress to be made [at UN climate summits]."
- In November 2024, Morano produced a series of exclusive viral videos on meat hypocrisy at the UN climate summit. Morano's segments were featured online by Grabien Productions and appeared on many radio and TV shows as well. The reports revealed that, "After Demanding Meat Tax, Activists at the UN's COP29 Climate Summit continued to gobble up meat and avoided Vegan offerings."
- In November 2024, Morano appeared on Hannity's Fox News program to talk about the hypnosis of private jet flying former climate envoy John Kerry's call for a USA 'climate emergency'.
- In December 2024, Morano appeared on Fox News' Evening Edit to analyze The New York Times promoting the end of home ownership to fight 'climate change.' Morano quipped, "It's all magical thinking."

COLLEGIANS

CFACT's Collegians program just ended another successful year of impactful activities in the fight for freedom of speech, sound science, and free-market-oriented environmental solutions at colleges and universities nationwide. In 2024, CFACT's Campus Representatives, which hailed from over 42 schools across 25 states, hosted speakers, submitted public comments to federal administrative agencies, conducted effective campus activism, and brought their fellow students out to improve the environment both on and off campus. From the warm and sunny coasts of Florida to the endless rolling hills of South Dakota, these young men and women led by example and showed the world what the next generation of climate realists look like.

WILLIAM
UNIVERSITY

Here is small portion of the stellar events our Collegians conducted this year:

- Participating in CFACT's nationwide litter clean-up initiative, Collegians from 13 different colleges and universities throughout the country made it their mission to clean up the communities they live in. Abandoned lots, downtown rivers, campuses and gun ranges were just a few of the locations to receive a much-needed facelift.
- CFACT's own Marc Morano spoke to a receptive group of students at San Diego State University. Marc gave a resounding presentation titled "Unmasking the Climate Agenda" to a nearly full house in an outdoor courtyard of an on-campus dining facility. Partnering with TPUSA and Leadership Institute, Marc's presentation showed how the Left would like to use the COVID-19 lockdowns as a model for a "climate emergency."

- Collegian Ariana Alonso made Halloween extra spooky for students on William Paterson University's campus in New Jersey by demonstrating how unreliable "green" energy really is. Using candy to demonstrate the discrepancy in energy output between clean and traditional energy sources, Ariana labeled the left side of her table "green energy," offering students a single lollipop. While the right side labeled "nuclear and fossil fuels," sporting hefty bags of candy. Unsurprisingly, fossil fuels and nuclear bags were in high demand.
- Driessen Fellow Eann Tang joined forces with CFACT's National Field Director to crash a University of Illinois baseball game in full Kingfisher (U of IL's bird mascot) costume, sporting signs that read "Kingfishers Against Windmills." The stunt successfully raised local awareness of the death toll windmills inflict on bird populations worldwide.
- The wordsmiths among our ranks took to their laptops to pen thought-provoking op-eds and written testimonies on pressing federal regulation hearings. CFACT collegians submitted 14 public comments to government agencies such as BOEM, EPA, NOAA, and the NRC, and two op-eds were placed in news publications and on our website covering the dangers of offshore wind farms and the benefits of recommissioning nuclear plants here in the U.S.

INTERNATIONAL

CFACT is the preeminent free-market-oriented organization fully engaged in international energy, environment, and climate diplomacy. Our pro-technology, pro-free-market environmental message continues to resonate with people not just in the U.S., but also around the world.

Among its many activities in the international sphere, CFACT has been actively participating in and reporting on the United Nations climate change process since the 1990s. CFACT has been a "recognized NGO" to the UN Convention on Climate Change since 1997 and has participated in over 30 high-profile international meetings throughout the years.

In 2024, CFACT sent a delegation of policy and media experts to the UN COP29 climate summit in Baku, Azerbaijan. The conference focused on "finance" and after a contentious process resulted in a resolution for developed nations to increase climate funding commitments from $100 to $300 billion to the developing world by 2035. The Biden Administration joined in this outcome. China and India managed to retain classification as developing nations and avoided this commitment, despite the vast size of their economies.

The COP occurred immediately after the U.S. election and CFACT became the resident expert providing perspective on what the incoming Trump Administration would mean for climate diplomacy. CFACT spokesmen appeared on numerous radio and television programs before, during and after the event, including multiple appearances on Fox News, Fox Business, NewsMax, OAN, and numerous other outlets. Marc Morano, who administers CFACT's award-winning Climate Depot news and information service made numerous media appearances.

CFACT also participated in several other international activities, here is a short listing:

- CFACT co-sponsored a scientific conference in Vienna, Austria, partnering with EIKE, the European Institute for Climate and Energy, and the Heartland Institute. Those in attendance at the packed house included intellectual heavyweights such as Nobel Prize winner John Clauser, Harvard-Smithsonian scientist Dr. Willie Soon, Trump science advisor Dr. William Happer, and Danish climatologist Dr. Henrik Svensmark, among many others. CFACT's Craig Rucker and Marc Morano also delivered presentations.
- CFACT's Stewardship in Action program puts the principles we fight for into real action. In India, for example, CFACT helped local villagers establish wells and fresh water supplies. These projects not only allow locals to learn about market-based entrepreneurship, but they also improve the life and health of their communities.
- CFACT works with international partners on such projects as eucalyptus and livestock farming in Uganda with an emphasis on helping local businesspeople become successful, self-reliant, and capable of mentoring and partnering with others in their communities.

CFACT staff were on numerous TV, radio, and news outlets before, during, and after COP29 and the U.S. elections.

CFACT helped bring clean water wells to Kharpudi Village, India. The sign reads, "Special Thanks to CFACT," which was held up during the dedication ceremony.

Craig Rucker and Marc Morano were interviewed on French television, while wearing Make America Great Again hats.

GRASSROOTS

An important part of CFACT's educational outreach is centered on grassroots activism. Often ignored by major policy organizations that are focused on events "inside the beltway" and national issues highlighted by major media outlets, "grassroots engagement" remains an important component of reaching the mainstream public with information and addressing issues that are central to their lives. Thus, CFACT continues to make grassroots organizing a priority and is happy to report on some of our achievements in 2024.

- In Ohio, CFACT's National Grassroots Coordinator Tom DeWeese met with leaders in Belmont County that were working to eliminate numerous problems in their county caused by property rights violations that locked up their land via the Egypt Valley Wildlife Area. Tom supplied a detailed outline for local citizens to follow to pressure the Ohio Department of Natural Resources to open the land to private use. The residents later held a public town hall where numerous state and local officials attended to hear their concerns.
- In North Dakota, several chapters of the state's Sons of Liberty organization joined CFACT's Freedom Pod movement to organize activists across their state.
- In Minnesota, CFACT helped local residents to hold roundtable discussions with county commissioners to voice their opposition to wind and solar farms that were not complying with regulations and threatening private property rights.
- In Oregon, CFACT addressed numerous local political, business and stakeholder groups, including members of the Confederated Tribes of the Coos, to oppose offshore wind turbines. The Native Americans later filed suit against offshore wind construction, a move that stopped the sites from being auctioned in October.
- In September, CFACT helped locals in New Jersey stage some beach street theater by forming a "whale tail" at Cape May. The event was attended by numerous citizens and local officials alike.
- In Colorado, more CFACT Freedom Pods were established to join the fight to stop a 400,000-acre national monument land grab that will affect private property, cattle grazing, mining, and water rights in that state.

Wind turbines have become divisive issue in Traverse County

Farmers are deciding whether to put turbines on their land, despite the anger that might come with it.

THANK YOU!

With the return of the incoming administration, CFACT stands poised to make an even greater impact in the policy debate in 2025. There is no doubt the political environment in Washington has changed ... and that for the better. But even though the prospects are bright, we would be mistaken to think the road will be an easy one. It is only a matter of time before the mainstream media and their allies in the radical environmental movement seek a return to power, and that's why we must be on guard. Thank you so much for your past support, and rest assured CFACT will be on the job debunking the alarmists and pushing for a commonsense energy and environmental agenda that moves our nation toward a bright tomorrow.
